We wanted to explore FEAR in today's world and have created a unique collaborative creation that does just that.

Omniphobia opens Friday!

Check out some press photos below of the talented cast playing dozens of wacky characters in "OMNIPHOBIA," the world premiere multimedia play that explores fear in hilarious, thought-provoking, heartfelt, never-before-seen episodes centered around Professor Emily Robertson (Gusta Johnson) as she navigates a day fraught with funny, weird and life-changing events.

The Portland Press Herald features the show in Maine Today Magazine, explaining "Snowlion's newest original play explores the ubiquity of fear" and humorously characterizes it as "24 hours of fear!" (referencing the main character's 24-hour journey during the play).

Press Herald Lead Story

Also this week, lead actress Gusta Johnson appears with director Al D'Andrea on WCSH Channel 6's entertainment program 207.

The performance on Sunday, October 6 (starting at 2 pm) features a post-show audience talkback with two psychologists from the Maine Psychological Association (MePA) who will share their insights about how we deal with our fears.

So get your amygdala ready for some fun! Don't wait, order tickets today!
